The Department of Revenue is looking for an energetic and enthusiastic individual who enjoys working in a fast-paced technical environment. To perform successfully as a Programmer Analyst, you must be analytical, logical, and have both a strong work ethic and a positive attitude. This position requires that you be self-motivated, have the ability to work both independently and as part of a team, and that you communicate effectively and professionally with co-workers. If you excel in a dynamic computing environment, make sound decisions, and are accountable for them, we encourage you to apply.

Programmer Analysts provide professional support to the department's computing environment. Work involves software design, development, modification, implementation and production support using standard development practices. It also involves writing requirements definitions, program specifications, and test plans. Candidates must have:

- Knowledge of programming languages, design theory, and computer application functionality; application testing theory; development tools; and hardware and software.
- Analytical skills; skill and ability to read technical materials and interpret, comprehend, and utilize information obtained; and to perform needs assessment services and feasibility analysis of computer systems.
- Ability to adhere to ethical standards; adapt readily to new situations and effectively resolve problems; make appropriate decisions and use good judgment; work on multiple tasks and manage time effectively; and to work effectively with little or no guidance.
- Skill and ability to communicate and mentor coworkers and users regarding supported applications and to provide timely and effective written, oral, and interpersonal communication.

The above competencies are typically acquired through a combination of applicable education and field-related experience. Formal training in software development is desirable. All relevant combinations of education and experience will be evaluated on an individual basis.

The State offers great benefits to its employees including three weeks paid vacation, sick leave, medical, dental, and life insurance, and a retirement plan. Optional programs available include vision coverage, disability insurance, and a deferred compensation plan. The department also makes additional training opportunities available to all employees. This is an excellent career opportunity.

An average compensation package for a salary of $30,000.00/yr is:

Wages:	$30,000.00
Benefits:	$ 6,684.00
Retirement:	$ 2,070.00

Total Average Wage Package $38,754.00
